This Shopper's Guide is one example of the NAIC's work to help states educate and protect consumers. Another way the NAIC helps state regulators is by giving them a forum to develop uniform public policy when that is appropriate. It does this through a series of model laws, regulations, and guidelines developed for the states' use.

The world's food supply has changed drastically. It is almost certain that lurking in any given household are products that in previous generations would not have passed for food. The problem has gone beyond food additives and contamination as corporations are allowed to create "food" in a lab using things nature never intended us to eat. That same food is being shown to potentially ...
